An evening of music and philanthropy to reignite the spirit of 80’s activism to end AIDS.
In 1983, Grandmaster Flash and the Furious Five introduced us to “The Message” — a rap song with social consciousness unlike anything before on the national scene. The days of disco, endless parties and drugs were just beginning to give way to concern—concern about poverty and injustice. It was also a time when something else began to concern us—a disease that too few knew about, no one understood and many didn’t even believe was real. In the early 1980’s, it was labeled the “gay cancer,” but by 1989, 400,000 people were infected with HIV worldwide. A few years later 2.5 million people had died of AIDS: gay people, straight people, mothers, fathers, sisters, brothers, friends and children.

Institutions and governments were not responding. So people took to the streets. ACT UP, GMHC, Treatment Action Group and people like Marlon Riggs, Elizabeth Glaser and Ryan White disrupted complacency. Some even brought blood to the steps of Congress. They forced people to hear them. Hearing gave way to listening, and listening paved the way to acting.

Their activism inspired a movement and encouraged people with access to power, business leaders and entrepreneurs, to start using their voices. Influencers like Keith Haring, Madonna, Magic Johnson, Arthur Ashe, Elizabeth Taylor, Elton John, Kenneth Cole and Clive Davis were some of the first to speak out publicly on the issue before it was deemed “safe.”

We've made tremendous progress because of this activism, and for that we are incredibly grateful. Yet today we face new challenges: funding has decreased and communities are being forgotten … again. The rate of infection is back to the level it was in the 80’s for some communities—transgender women, black gay men in Georgia and young women in KwaZulu-Natal. Stigma and discrimination are stronger than ever in some places, which prevents people from finding out their HIV status and getting treatment.

The existence of treatment has been confused with a cure and now HIV is the second-leading cause of death for adolescents worldwide. In Africa, it is the number one cause. While antiretroviral therapy (ART) exists, half of the children born with HIV don’t have access to treatment. Many of these children won’t even find out they’re HIV positive until they’re in their early teens. It is still a matter of life and death. Although it’s not in the papers anymore, people are needlessly dying. We need the energy that was in the air during the 80’s today. We need to keep empowering the next generation of disruptors and activists.

This is what Keep a Child Alive is fighting for. This is what you are fighting for tonight.

Thank you to our honoree and long-time friend, Clive Davis, for his incredible commitment to the fight against AIDS. And to all the amazing performers who grace the stage tonight in support of our mission and the people we serve, we could not be more grateful. And last but not least, to everyone who has supported us throughout the years, on behalf of the 82,000 people we reach annually—THANK YOU!

With love and gratitude,
Peter
Innovator, creator and humanitarian, the legendary Clive Davis has impacted the lives of so many people, both through his contributions to music and his philanthropic efforts. In 1985 he began his tireless and ongoing battle in the fight against AIDS with the song “That’s What Friends Are For.” The hit song went on to raise millions of dollars and helped draw much needed attention to the cause.

His activism in the 80’s, when few were speaking out, was crucial in the fight to raise awareness about AIDS. Today, the issue is no longer in the headlines but Clive’s commitment and activism have been unwavering. He has supported Keep a Child Alive since its inception in 2003, and for that we are truly grateful. Join us tonight as we honor him.

“...AIDS has affected the lives of many people, some of whom were very near and dear to me. The difference between now and before is that we have the power and resources to end this epidemic. And I greatly admire Alicia and Keep a Child Alive for their dedication to this cause.” — CLIVE DAVIS
OUR MISSION

To realize the end of AIDS for children and their families, by combating the physical, social and economic impacts of HIV.

Keep a Child Alive (KCA) was founded in 2003 by AIDS activist Leigh Blake and Grammy Award-winner Alicia Keys, as an emergency push to get lifesaving HIV medications to African children and families, who otherwise would not have had access.

KCA’s work has since grown to include the critical components necessary for successful, lifelong HIV treatment: comprehensive, holistic care that supports the complete health of children and their families, ensuring their physical, mental and social well-being.

KCA provides financial and programmatic support to innovative, grassroots programs in Kenya, Rwanda, South Africa, Uganda and India, reaching over 82,000 people annually. With the help of its supporters, KCA continues to use its voice to raise awareness, mobilize people to take action, and rally resources in the global response to HIV.
The Family Care Clinic (FCC) started in 2001 as a pilot program at Coast General Hospital. At the time, most experts thought HIV treatment would not work for children in Africa. The success of the “Mombasa Model” at FCC has shown that providing complex, multidisciplinary services to children with HIV is not only possible in a government hospital but also sustainable and affordable, while also delivering a consistently high quality of care. Today, FCC provides clinical and support services to children and young people living with HIV and serves 5,700 clients with quality health services. FCC continues to be a model pediatric–and youth, as children kept alive over the years grow into adolescents–HIV care and treatment program in Kenya and globally.

Women’s Equity in Access to Care and Treatment (WE-ACTx) was founded in the wake of the 1994 genocide, when an estimated 250,000 women experienced rape, torture, and numerous other forms of violence. During this time, many women contracted HIV. In 2004, WE-ACTx for Hope was created to mobilize resources to help women living with HIV exercise their right to access HIV care and treatment. Over a decade since the organization’s founding, WE-ACTx for Hope has grown to provide quality HIV care at two clinics in Kigali and offers community-based support services. WE-ACTx for Hope is now a locally registered NGO in Kigali, providing clients with comprehensive HIV care and treatment, psychosocial and mental health services, nutritional support and skills training. And it is committed to providing youth-friendly HIV services and engaging young people in the program as peer educators and staff.

Blue Roof Wellness Centre in Wentworth, Durban, is a warm space built by KCA co-founder Alicia Keys, with generous support from the Stephen Lewis Foundation. The clinic is located in KwaZulu-Natal, the province with the highest HIV prevalence rates in the world (28%), and was created to ensure that people living with HIV have access to comprehensive, dignified care and treatment. Blue Roof provides high-quality HIV care and treatment to children and families; HIV testing and counseling at the clinic and within the community; tuberculosis and cervical cancer screening; psychosocial and adherence support; and nutritious meals for each client. Last year, KCA began working to transform the Blue Roof into a model center for children and youth, that provides not only clinical services, but also youth-centered HIV prevention programs, career development activities, and children-and-youth-focused community outreach and mobilization initiatives.
IKAGENG ITIRELENG AIDS MINISTRY
SOWETO, SOUTH AFRICA

Ikageng, under the leadership of “Mum” Carol, a fierce advocate for children’s rights in South Africa, provides services and support to vulnerable children and young people in Soweto. Many of Ikageng’s clients have been orphaned or are otherwise affected by AIDS. Many live in child-headed households, where they are forced at an early age to take on the role of parent and look after their younger siblings. Some of Ikageng’s children play caregiver to a terminally ill parent or live with a grandparent who struggles to get by on the small pension provided by the government. Ikageng’s holistic approach provides children with the food, clothing, schooling, healthcare, life-skills training, and psychosocial support services they need, keeping them in their communities and giving them a boost—to not only survive but thrive.

OPERATION BOBBI BEAR
AMANZIMTOTI, SOUTH AFRICA

Situated in Amanzimtoti, just outside Durban, Operation Bobbi Bear is led by Jackie and Eureka, deeply passionate and committed women outraged by the alarmingly high rates of sexual violence and abuse targeted at children in their community. Bobbi Bear works on behalf of children who have been sexually abused, violated, and neglected to ensure their health and well-being and minimize their risk of HIV infection. The organization fights relentlessly to see that perpetrators are brought to justice, working closely with the police and community leaders. Bobbi Bear serves vulnerable and abused children through its rescue, outreach, and awareness-raising programs, including education and sensitization on sexual abuse for local schools, police, and community groups. Their signature “Bobbi Bear,” a stuffed bear on which children can draw and use to describe their abuse, has been court approved across South Africa and has helped thousands of children tell their stories.

ALIVE MEDICAL SERVICES
KAMPALA, UGANDA

The Alive Medical Services (AMS) clinic is located in Namuwongo, one of the poorest and most crowded urban areas in Kampala. The growth from the clinic’s humble beginnings, with six clients a decade ago, to its current work serving more than 12,000 people, underscores the need and high demand for HIV services in Uganda. AMS stands as a beacon of hope for the Namuwongo community and far beyond, with some patients traveling long distances to receive quality care. AMS offers a range of holistic services to its clients: HIV counseling and testing; HIV care and ART; prevention and treatment of opportunistic infections; prevention of mother-to-child transmission of HIV; general medical care; well-baby care and immunizations; psychosocial support and counseling; family planning; a range of lab tests; and support groups, including several women’s groups and the Victor’s Club for young people. Beyond clinical care, AMS also addresses poverty among its clients, providing access to new skills and promising income-generating activities that give people and their families hope for the future.
THE BHAVISHYA PROJECT
PUNE, INDIA

The Bhavishya (Sanskrit for “looking toward the future”) Project is comprised of Sahara Aalhad Care Home which provides clinical, psychosexual, and advocacy support, and Seathosee, an NGO that strengthens the economic potential of women in urban poor settings. Bhavishya works to improve the health and well-being of women, children, and families affected by HIV, tuberculosis and poverty. The objectives are to increase access to government HIV testing and treatment, support lifelong retention and adherence, and promote economic empowerment—ultimately moving clients from poor health and isolation toward improved health, social integration, and inclusion. By combining and coordinating the forces of two organizations, Bhavishya is able to have a greater impact, as well as provide a replicable model of care.

To date the project has served over 10,000 people.

THE PRAYAS PROJECT
PUNE, INDIA

Since 1994 Prayas Health Group (Prayas) has been working on critical activities including: HIV awareness, training, developing educational materials, care and support services for people living with HIV, research and advocacy. Prayas works to address the needs of children and adolescents, who are often neglected and extremely vulnerable, living with HIV in child care institutions in Maharashtra. Children and adolescents in care institutions face high levels of HIV-related stigma and discrimination and do not have access to the skills-building and educational opportunities that will help them when they are mandated to leave institutionalized care at the age of 18.

KCA and Prayas provide education and support to care home staff, conduct “Growing Up” workshops to address the specific needs and concerns of young people, facilitate mentoring programs and share lessons and accomplishments at the state and national levels.
PLEASE NOTE:
The highest bidder acknowledged by the auctioneer shall be the purchaser, who will confirm the sale by signing an auction invoice, which constitutes a legal contract to buy. The auctioneer reserves the right to settle any and all disputes, complaints, misunderstandings, errors and sales at his/her discretion. The auctioneer’s decision will be final. Payment for the auction lot is due within one week of event date: Wednesday, October 26, 2016. You may pay by check, Visa, MasterCard, American Express or Discover cards. The auction item will be shipped the next business day (if applicable) after payment is received. Please note all the conditions, restrictions, and expiration dates on items and services. Dates for all trips must be mutually arranged with the highest bidder. Keep a Child Alive has attempted to describe and catalogue all items correctly. All items are sold “as is.” Keep a Child Alive neither warrants nor represents, and shall in no event be responsible for the correctness of the descriptions, genuineness, authorship, provenance, or condition of the property. All auction lots are valid up to one year from the event date, Thursday, October 19, 2017, unless otherwise noted. No statement contained in these auction pages or made orally at the sale or elsewhere shall be deemed such a warranty, representation, or assumption of liability of tax purposes or general value. All sales are final. No exchanges or refunds unless otherwise indicated. Values set for some items being auctioned are estimated only and are not warranted by Keep a Child Alive for tax purposes of general value. The amount of tax-deductible donation is limited to the excess of the money paid for the auction item over the fair market value of the goods or services.

LOUIS XIII THE LEGACY & EXPERIENCE
LOUIS XIII Cognac is the ultimate expression of the mastery of time, as each decanter takes up to 100 years and four generations of Cellar Masters to craft. To celebrate this legacy, LOUIS XIII has created an exclusive limited edition magnum decanter, hand-signed by all four Cellar Masters who have, across generations, been responsible for crafting LOUIS XIII. The decanter is accompanied by an etched plaque displaying a unique identifying number. You will receive 1 of just 300 decanters created globally.

Your experience also features a priceless trip to France in May 2017 to collect the LOUIS XIII Legacy magnum. The trip begins in Paris with dinner at a three Michelin-starred restaurant, private cruise on the Seine aboard a Riva boat and an overnight stay at a five-star hotel. You’ll then journey to Cognac to enjoy an exclusive visit to the House of LOUIS XIII, a guided tour of the LOUIS XIII cellars and tasting with Cellar Master Baptiste Loiseau, followed by a curated dinner at the private family estate. Your trip will culminates in an unforgettable visit to Cannes as a guest of LOUIS XIII for the 70th Annual Cannes Film Festival. At Cannes, you will walk the red carpet for a coveted film premiere and enjoy a VIP behind-the-scenes experience.

ESTIMATED VALUE: PRICELESS
SPECIAL THANKS: LOUIS XIII AND SHERRY-LEHMANN WINE & SPIRITS
PLEASE NOTE:
